AlbumArte, Via Flaminia, 122 Roma

From February 15th to March 1st 2018, the artists Dario Agati and Fabio Giorgi Alberti present a series of unpublished pictorial works and installations in the double personal exhibition Quite solo, introducing their original research to the public. The space of AlbumArte becomes a place of encounter, a meeting place for games of references between fullness and emptiness, disappearances and revelations. The artists realize the exhibition at AlbumArte as joint winners of the Dancity Open Call 2017 *Control Reversal, which is part of the Dancity Art Session, on the occasion of the Dancity Festival (11th edition). The show is part of AlbumArte | Flash! programme (a series of short exhibitions at AlbumArte)

A certain unpredictability of choices characterizes the work of Dario Agati, which is linked to the time, often long, employed by the artist for the realization of each work. These choices tend to change and take new shapes according to the necessities of the moment, stratified by specific temporal evolutions. With the ironic tone that distinguishes his work, Agati breaches the boundaries transforming the art of painting into a medium that blends with desire. Created for the occasion, all the works presented are called Untitled (you would not understand): "It amazes like a firework, but it lasts just a moment, and later the sky turns back how it was before. In the end, only a sparkle of this research can eventually reach the spectator, only a small part, the superficial layer of things. I work and think all day, looking for something indefinite, in an attempt to change the way to see the world." A bitter and disenchanting statement that seems to give voice to a generation, the one born at the end of the 80s, who has seen its expectations breaking up and its dreams vanishing.

Fabio Giorgi Alberti instead works on the broad concept of time, understood as an empathic experience between the authorial self and the spectatorial us. At the basis of the participatory research to which the artist submits his works is the encounter of different visual spaces, within specific temporal coordinates. He employs the contamination between sculpture, video, painting, poetry, to investigate the language and the relationship of the individual with the reality that surrounds him/her. The vaguely displacing element operates as an index to rethink the new position of the observer in a world that's changed. His works deal in fact with the idea of circularity and fragmentation: reality is a flow of isolated events, and the individual himself has the task of connecting these according to his/her own experience, creating a unique (and perhaps unpublished) suitable narrative. The work of art thus becomes a bridge between two subjectivities, that of the artist and that of the spectator.

Dario Agati (1990) born in Caltagirone, he lives in Rome. Dario got his Bachelor and Master Degree in Painting at the Academy of Fine Arts in Rome and a Postgraduate Specialization in Graphic Art Languages.
