ALL BOOM ARTE. Italian Artists at AlbumArte 2011-2020 (Quodlibet editore, September 2021) is the volume edited by Cristina Cobianchi with the coordination of the editorial project made by Fabiola Fiocco, and the general coordination of the project by Marta Bracci, winner of the Italian Council (8th Edition, 2020), the program for the promotion of Italian contemporary art in the world of the Directorate-General for Contemporary Creativity of the Italian Ministry of Culture.

The protagonists of the book, in a double Italian-English version, are the Italian artists who have participated in AlbumArte's program of exhibitions and activities from 2011 to 2020 in Italy and abroad, and the rich community that they have managed to form around this independent non-profit cultural and artistic production center based in Rome. An important part of the book is dedicated to 18 unpublished conversations between the artists and curators of AlbumArte. The book, aesthetically beautiful and with a special and innovative graphic layout, is divided into sections that illustrate the context of AlbumArte's research: Italian artists abroad with AlbumArte; AlbumArte | VideoArtForum; AlbumArte | performance; The project Donne (non più) anonime - conversation on femicide; together with images and texts related to all the exhibitions and projects realized with them.

“Since the beginning of my adventure in contemporary art, being able to foster a community around our projects has always been ‘the dream to realise’ since the beginning of my adventure in contemporary art. The strength of AlbumArte was precisely the desire to share an intellectual and artistic space with courage, curiosity and coherence, opening it up to new contents and visions. I have tried to explain our path in this book and to tell it by including as many voices as possible, as this was the task I had assigned myself.” (CC)
